Pay increase leads MU budget request

By Jeanne Wells
and E. Ann Dougherty
Staff Writers

Marshall University has asked the Board of Regents for a $29,724,000 budget for the 1984-85 school year.

Requests were made at the budget and appropriations meeting with the BOR in Charleston Monday, according to Dr. Olen E. Jones, provost.

The Faculty Advisory Board recommended to the BOR a $16,228,000 pay raise for faculty. This includes a 15-percent increase across the board and 5-percent merit increase, according to Jones.

In contrast, West Virginia University officials proposed a $35.5-million budget increase for the 1984 fiscal year.

WVU proposed an $8.15 million salary increase for employees, $4.8 million in program increases at the Morgantown campuses and the university's Potomac State College branch as well as $15 million to improve its scientific equipment and facilities.

Marshall requested a $28,000 increase in the Athletic Department budget. This is a 10-percent increase from last year's budget.

Marshall also asked for additional money to complete the addition to the Science Hall. Jones said the construction cost is running $5.8 million over estimated funding.

During the meeting, the BOR asked Jones what would result if the money was not available. Jones said an alternate plan to move into the new addition slowly as construction is completed is in place, but he would rather make the move "first class."

The Medical School has asked for an 11.43-percent increase from last year in state funds, according to Dr. Robert W. Coon, vice president and dean of Marshall's School of Medicine.

He wants to increase stipends for medical school residents. "We are $3,000 below the national average," Coon said.

"If we could encourage West Virginians to go into debt, we could stand to raise tuition," he said. Students are reluctant to use loans for their education, Coon said.

Coon said a better loan program needs to be developed for medical students.

Marshall has dropped 160 sections from its spring semester schedule. All part-time faculty will be terminated and full-time faculty will be guaranteed employment of two five-week terms of summer school, according to Jones.

However, a spokesman for the BOR said it isn't too late to direct some of the summer school money for hiring part-time faculty for the spring semester.

Marshall also proposed to increase graduate assistant stipends from $2,200 to $2,600 per semester to remain competitive with other universities.

Jones said last year Marshall lost $500,000 because of vacancies in the residence halls. He said he wants a tighter system to keep freshmen and sophomores in the halls.

Presidential search still attracting applicants

By Sandra Joy Adkins
Special Correspondent

Editor's note: This is the second in a three-part series on the presidency at Marshall University. This article highlights the selection process of the new president.

With the closing date of Oct. 1 approaching soon, the secretary to the presidential search committee said he expects the number of applications, which was 76 as of yesterday, to rise rapidly this week.

William J. Walsh, personnel director for the Board of Regents and executive secretary to the MU Presidential Search and Screening Advisory Committee, has received 52 applications and 24 nominations.

Forty-five persons have been nominated overall but only 24 have accepted. Walsh communicates with each nominee asking for a response by Oct. 1 if he or she wishes to be considered.

The search and screening committee is to recommend three to five candidates for the position to the Board of Regents. Dr. Sam Clagg, chairman of the geography department, became acting president after Dr. Robert B. Hayes resigned May 11 under pressure from the regents.

The committee will meet Oct. 24 at 9:30 a.m. in the President's Dining Room to narrow the final number of applications down to 25 by looking at the credentials of candidates. Most of the meeting will be open to the public,

Walsh said, except when the committee goes into executive session to discuss names of candidates.

Judging from the size of Marshall, Walsh estimated the final number of applicants to be from 125 to 140. He said he expects to receive a large number of applications Friday because people have a tendency to wait until just before deadline to apply.

After Chancellor Robert Ramsey's recent resignation from the Board of Regents, there was some speculation the search for the new president might slow down.

However, Ramsey said, "I don't think it will have any impact. That is a good committee and after talking with Dr. John W. Saunders, president of the BOR, I feel the committee will move ahead and send the names to the BOR as expected."

The search committee is composed of the 11 members of the MU Institutional Board of Advisors, three lay persons appointed by the BOR and three faculty persons appointed by the IBA members on the search committee. Paul M. Churton, senior vice president of Ashland Coal Inc., is chairman of the committee.

Homecoming: Fashions, drawings and bonfire today

By Terri L. Lovely
Staff Writer

Caricature drawings, a bonfire and a fashion show are among the Homecoming activities scheduled today as part of "Marshall Magic... a Carnival of Colors."

The drawings will be done by Jim Vanderkeyl of Boston on the Memorial Student Center plaza. Vanderkeyl is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Phil Silverstein, coordinator of student activities and organizations, said.

Tickets to obtain a drawing are available in the Student Activities Office at the MSC Room 2W38. The number of tickets are limited, but are not necessary to have a drawing done. However, they will help keep long lines down, Silverstein said.

A fashion show is set for noon today in the lobby of the MSC. The show is sponsored by several Huntington department stores, among them Chess King, The Limited, Amsbarys and Wrights. Marshall students will model the clothes.

The bonfire is scheduled for 9 p.m. in the field next to the Henderson Center, Cindy Fluharty, secretary of student government, said. Homecoming attendants and the two finalists for queen will be announced then and Fluharty added, the homecoming queen is to be announced at the pre-game Saturday.

Rockefeller worth about $150 million

CHARLESTON - Gov. Jay Rockefeller's fortune totals "at least" $150 million, according to a magazine listing of the 400 wealthiest individuals in America.

Forbes magazine's annual "rich list" is included in the publication's Fall 1983 issue, which is due out on newsstands next week.

Although Rockefeller and his three siblings appear in the number 205 spot on the list, they are preceded by several other family groups so the number does not amount to a ranking. The magazine says their share of the family fortune amounts to "at least $600 million in Rockefeller trusts," leading to estimates of $150 million for each of the four.

Listed along with Jay are sisters Sandra Ferry, who stopped using her Rockefeller name in 1959, Hope Rockefeller and Alida Rockefeller Dayton.

Jay Rockefeller and his sisters are the children of John D. Rockefeller III, who died in an automobile accident in 1978. Last year, Forbes estimated their interests in family trusts at more than $100 million each.

Gun detected at airport

HUNTINGTON - An Oct. 7 hearing date has been set for a Cuban citizen and a woman companion who are accused of trying to board a Piedmont airliner with a loaded .357 Magnum concealed in their luggage.

Tri-State Airport security officers detained the pair about 1 p.m. Tuesday after an X-ray screening device detected a weapon inside a piece of luggage, airport manager Larry Salyers said.

Juan Rodriguez, 40, a resident of Islamorada, Fla., was being held Wednesday in lieu of $10,000 bond in the Cabell County jail. He was charged with attempting to board an aircraft with a firearm, and possessing a firearm after having been convicted of a felony, Jennifer Honaker, secretary to U.S. Magistrate Maurice G. Taylor Jr., said.

A check of police records indicated that Rodriguez had been convicted previously of breaking and entering in Florida, Honaker said.

Rodriguez' companion, Devonna Patrick, 33, also of Islamorada, was charged with "having on her person or property a concealed deadly or dangerous weapon which could have been accessible in flight," Honaker said.

Armco to sell 14 mines

CHARLESTON - Armco Inc. plans to get out of the coal business, quit producing oil and gas, reduce iron ore purchases and restructure its steel operations, company officials said Wednesday.

The company has agreed to sell its West Virginia coal properties, its interest in an unfinished Virginia coal terminal, and its Houston oil and gas production division. Armco also plans to trade away its interest in a Canadian iron ore company, and shut down parts of its Kentucky and Ohio steel plants.

Armco had 1982 sales of $5.4 billion, including $1.6 billion in carbon steel sales and $1.6 billion in oil production and petroleum equipment manufacturing.

Armco said in a statement released Wednesday that it has signed a letter of intent to sell its 14 West Virginia coal mines and interest in a nearly finished Newport News coal terminal to Peabody Holding Co. Inc, parent company of the nation's largest coal producer, Peabody Coal Co.

Controversy continues over Watt's comments

WASHINGTON - President Reagan considers the case of Interior Secretary James Watt's latest gaffe closed, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, adding that Watt is not expected to resign.

The comment was the second strong signal of the day that the administration and its congressional allies consider the furor to have peaked over Watt's characterization last week of several appointees as "a black, . . . a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

Saying that the White House does not expect Watt to resign, Speakes added, "The President considers the matter closed. It's behind us."

On Capitol Hill, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker said today that sentiment against Watt may have crested.

But leaders of minority Democrats, unwilling to lay the interior secretary's gaffe to rest, maneuvered to force a vote on whether Watt should quit. That vote, which even some Republicans concede could go against Watt, may come within the next few days.

Speakes said that public sentiment, as measured by calls and telegrams to the White House, had been running heavily against Watt last week, although Speakes had declined to reveal specific figures. While continuing to refuse to reveal any specifics, Speakes said today, "It's kind of evening up now."

Judge blocks coal sale

WASHINGTON - A federal judge, in one of the first cases interpreting the Supreme Court's ruling on the one-house legislative veto, issued an order Wednesday blocking Interior Secretary James Watt from selling federal coal in North Dakota.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Louis Oberdorfer would prevent Watt from escaping a pending congressional moratorium on coal sales by issuing the leases before Saturday.

Oberdorfer granted a request for an emergency order made by attorneys for the House of Representatives and two environmental groups, who contended that Watt was trying to thwart the will of the courts and Congress by rushing to issue leases covering 140 million tons of North Dakota coal.

Justice Department lawyers, who had represented Watt, indicated at a hearing Tuesday that they would appeal immediately if the ruling went against them in an effort to get Oberdorfer's decision overturned so Watt can issue the leases.

Emergency loan rate drops

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration, under increasing pressure to provide additional aid to farmers plagued by drought, announced Wednesday it is reducing emergency loan interest rates for farmers in counties designated eligible in the national disaster emergency loan program.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced that President Reagan had instructed him to lower the interest rate on emergency loans to farmers in such counties by 3 percent - to 5 percent from the current 8 percent.

Farmers unable to get loans elsewhere will be able to get the 5 percent rate on the first $100,000 borrowed, and will be subject to an 8 percent rate on any amount above that, the Agriculture Department said.

Andropov blasts U.S. arms proposal

MOSCOW - Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov on Wednesday condemned what he called American "unwillingness to conduct serious talks of any kind" on arms control.

He dismissed the "so-called new move" by President Reagan to limit nuclear weapons in Europe as nothing essentially different from previous U.S. proposals.

The official news agency Tass carried excerpts of what it said was a statement Wednesday by Andropov containing the Kremlin leader's first reaction to Reagan's new offer.

Reagan told the United Nations on Monday that Washington was willing to forego deployment of an unspecified number of the 572 Pershing 2 and cruise missiles NATO plans to start installing in Europe in December and to negotiate on reducing the number of planes able to carry nuclear weapons - if the Soviet Union reduced its medium range missile force.

He made the offer conditional on Soviet readiness to reduce its current force of an estimated 351 SS-20 missiles and other SS-4 and SS-5 missiles targeted on Western Europe.

Khaddam wants troops out

UNITED NATIONS - Syria's foreign minister told the United States and other Western nations Wednesday they should withdraw their peacekeeping troops from Lebanon because they are "posing a grave threat to security and peace" in the Middle East.

"They remind us of the colonialist expeditions through previous stages of the history of the region," Abdul Halim Khaddam said, referring to the 5,400-member force made up of U.S. Marines and troops from France, Italy and Britain.

In an address to the 38th U.N. General Assembly, Khaddam said nothing about withdrawing the estimated 50,000 Syrian troops from Lebanon, but insisted that Israeli troops withdraw unconditionally.

He said the May 17 Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement, which the United States helped negotiate, violates Lebanese sovereignty and should be considered "null and void."

Khaddam blamed both Israel and the United States for the fighting and turmoil in Lebanon and accused Washington of taking sides in Lebanon's civil war.

U.S., China beginning talks

PEKING - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Wednesday that China and the United States have started talks that could result in the sale of U.S. arms, and that President Reagan and Premier Zhao Ziyang will exchange visits next year.

After discussions with top leader Deng Xiaoping, Zhao and Defense Minister Zhang Aiping, Weinberger told reporters in Peking: "On the basis of the work here, I am really confident that we have secured the ability of both countries to deter war and thereby increase the chances of peace."

He said Zhao will visit Washington in January and Reagan will come to China in April. Zhang also is to visit the United States but the time has not been arranged, Weinberger said.

Weinberger told the news conference in Peking discussions have begun on cooperation in military technology, including specific weapons systems for China, and will continue "with my personal participation."

Give 3 cheers to Artists Series

When you think of Huntington, top-notch entertainment probably doesn't immediately pop into your head.

Face it, Huntington just isn't a cultural hot spot. Broadway producers don't eagerly anticipate how their shows will be received by area residents. Ballet companies don't form very often in the city. There is no Huntington Symphony Orchestra.

But one campus program - the Artists Series - has been working hard through the years to offer city residents and the Marshall community first-rate cultural events.

This year is no exception.

Under the leadership of Director Nancy P. Hindsley, the Artists Series once again offers quality entertainment, such as concerts with Lionel Hampton and the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, a Broadway play featuring Cybill Shepherd and Alvin Ailey Repertory Dance Ensemble.

In addition to concerts and plays, the series sponsors lectures and films on a variety of topics.

I, for one, would like to thank Mrs. Hindsley and her staff for their work and applaud their efforts to present quality performances to students, faculty, staff and the community.

But sometimes its efforts seem to go unappreciated by students who don't take full advantage of the offerings even though tickets may be obtained with an activity card and validated Marshall I.D.

Students say they don't attend the shows because they don't have time, that they have to study, that the performance will be boring. But they paid for it through their activity fees.

And not taking full advantage of Artists Series offerings hurts the student and keeps Huntington a cultural cold spot.

Please search with care

On Saturday, Marshall will come one step closer to finding a new leader.

It's on that day that the application period for the MU presidency will be closed. On Oct. 24, presidential search committee members will meet to narrow the list of candidates to 25.

What kind of leader will the selection process yield?

The possibilities are endless, but we hope the winner of the presidential race will possess these characteristics:

(1) A firm dedication to academic excellence - by far the most important characteristic for a university president. Of course, all candidates who want to be the new MU president will at least give lip service to this principle. But we urge the search committee to gauge candidates' determination to work for academic quality by asking these questions:

Do you support more stringent admissions standards? Would you seek increased funding and increased attention for recruitment of academically superior high school students? Would you endorse the implementation of a university-wide writing requirement similar to the one recently adopted for the College of Liberal Arts?

(2) Ability to put athletics into proper perspective. We need a president who will realize that the primary goal of any university should be to provide intellectual and cultural enrichment - not to win football or basketball games.

Such a quality could be determined, in part, by a pledge to hold the line on the student activity fee to fund intercollegiate athletics. The fee for most students is $36 - more than five times the fee money given to the Artists Series, a program which certainly provides more educational and cultural benefits than do sporting events.

(3) A fighter. We want a president who will protest to Board of Regents members any policy which he or she believes would be detrimental to Marshall. From the events surrounding the forced resignation of President Robert B. Hayes, it is evident that the BOR cannot always be counted on to act in the best interest of this university.

And as a fighter, we would expect the president to be willing to lobby in the Legislature - within bounds permitted by the BOR - for substantial pay increases for faculty members.

(4) A thorough understanding of the situation which higher education now faces in this state - the lack of commitment by the governor, Legislature and state taxpayers to providing adequate education funding.

The search committee must take special pains to ensure that out-of-state candidates have this understanding. Without it, MU's president could not begin to deal with the frustration that plagues the employees and students of this campus.

(5) Accessibility to faculty, staff and students. This includes a commitment to include them in as many decisions as possible. A university president should realize that the best decisions, if not the quickest, result when a diverse segment of the university community is allowed to contribute ideas and opinions.

(6) Openness in dealing with the media. In order to allow members of the university community to have input into decision making, the president must not impede the flow of information. We need a president who will pledge to respect the First Amendment rights of the media and particularly the campus media, which often are the only sources of information about events at Marshall.

We urge search committee members to get a pledge from all presidential finalists that they will never censor the campus media.

The search committee members have a tough job. Their decisions in the coming months will affect the future of Marshall for years to come. We urge them to proceed with care.

Baha'i persecution gains attention

To the editor:

Recently the Baha'i Information Committee of Huntington received encouraging news that 89 professors of Iranian and Middle Eastern studies in the United States have protested the persecution of the Baha'is in Iran in an open letter to the Iranian Government. We view this as a very significant development in that the 89 men and women who signed the letter come from all parts of the Middle East, Europe and North America. They are Jews, Muslims, Christians and Baha'is.

The letter, published in August 7 editions of The New York Times and the Los Angeles Times, says that the Baha'is "have been systematically persecuted for the mere fact that they adhere to a religion other than Islam. Such persecution and these cruel and unjust executions seem to us a contradiction of all that is best in the traditions of Islam and the Iranian people."

You may recall that on July 28, 1983, ABC News' "20/20" program aired a special segment devoted to Iran's campaign to exterminate its 300,000 member Baha'i community. The program reached an estimated 25 million people, according to A.C. Nielsen, who ranked it eleventh of the week. The "20/20" report was preceded by President Reagan's appeal to other world leaders to join him in an effort to end the Iranian Government's brutal persecution of the Baha'i community. The May 22nd presidential address was aired on two of the major television networks, as well as many local television stations.

The Baha'i Community has on previous occasions appealed to the people of Huntington to help us deliver our Iranian brothers and sisters from relentless, intensifying persecution, by appealing to local and state representatives, or to any persons holding influential positions. Concerted efforts world-wide to expose the Iranian Government's hideous, death campaign against the Baha'is, are now beginning to have an effect. While Iran's government may be insensitive to embarrassing publicity, let's not underestimate the long range effects of the continued public outcry.

Copies of the open letter to the Iranian government listing the names of the 89 professors may be obtained by writing to the Baha'i Information Committee at 2141 4th Avenue, Huntington, West Virginia 25703.

Brent M. Reed,
Public Information Representative of the Baha'i Community of Huntington

$200 and jewelery stolen from students

By Paul Carson
Staff Writer

Unlocked doors have led to the theft of nearly $200 from university students in the last week, according to security officials.

On Monday afternoon two juvenile males entered the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority house and stole about $100 in cash and an assortment of jewelry. According to Detective Dale Burns, of the Huntington Police Department, one suspect has been arrested in connection with the burglary. Another suspect has been identified and his arrest was expected sometime Tuesday. Burns said the jewelry taken had been returned, but the cash had not been recovered.

Tri-Sigma member Susanne Callaway, Huntington sophomore, said she discovered a juvenile in the upstairs portion of the sorority house. He told her he was looking for a drink of water, she said.

She said he followed her downstairs where she failed in an attempt to detain him while she called the police.

However, Burns said her description of the suspect led to his arrest. Further investigation led to the identity of the second suspect.

Callaway said the front doors of the sorority house were unlocked at the time of the incident.

According to a report filed in the Office of Public Safety, a resident of Laidley Hall reported her room was entered while she was asleep. The complainant said she awoke to find a white male juvenile beside her bed, but he fled when she screamed. A subsequent search of her belongings revealed the theft of $75 from her purse. She informed the officer handling the complaint that she had left her door unlocked.

In fact the majority of larceny reports being handled by university police deals with property not properly secured or left unattended by its owner, according to Don Salyers, director of public safety.

Salyers said one victim had left his pants and wallet on a bench in Gullickson Hall while taking a shower. When he returned the pants and wallet were gone along with $15. The pants and wallet were recovered from a nearby trash can, but the money was not recovered.

Several reports filed in the security office concerned doors being discovered open in the middle of the night. On Friday night the door to Twin Towers cafeteria was discovered standing open.

On Saturday night a door at Corbly Hall was standing open and on Sunday night the locker room at Fairfield Stadium was discovered open.

"These were probably not breaking and enterings," Salyers said. "During the course of the year these type reports will consistently turn up in our files. Usually we find that these doors were just not locked."

Salyers said nothing was reported stolen from any of these buildings.

IFC president Wigal resigns position

By Mark Ayersman
Staff Writer

The president of Marshall University's Intrafraternity Council, Rusty Wigal, Reedsville, Ohio, senior announced his resignation Tuesday at the IFC's weekly meeting.

IFC First Vice President Eric Shelburne, Vero Beach, Fla., junior will serve as acting president until new officers are elected in February 1984.

"Eric will do a fine job," Wigal said. "He knows the ropes."

Wigal, a Lambda Chi Alpha member, was elected in February to the position which he had planned to retain until December when he said he is scheduled to graduate with a bachelor's degree in computer science.

"I can't give the office the time that needs to be put into it right now," Wigal said.

Several required projects in his computer science courses, and an increase in his workload to 25 hours a week as a Programmer Analyst for Huntington's Corps of Engineers caused him to resign early, Wigal said.

"I thought about the time factor in February, but I did not anticipate this semester's workload," he said. "I would rather stay in IFC than work, but I have to keep my job because of the economic factor."

Linda Templeton, Marshall's Greek adviser said she had advised him against a resignation.

"Rusty's resignation as president will be a great loss to IFC," Templeton said, "and I tried to talk him out of it."

"I wasn't surprised he resigned, because Rusty is a very conscientious student too," she said. "Rusty really cared about IFC, but he knows he can't devote enough time to it."

Wigal said he regrets leaving and having made some enemies as president, even within his own fraternity.

"I probably ruled more things against the Lambda Chi than past presidents ruled against their own fraternities," he said. "I did not want to show favoritism as president. I couldn't pat everyone's back."

One instance where Wigal said he could have improved his time in office was a better job of delegating work.

"Also, I didn't get a second opinion on everything I did as president," Wigal said.

Artist Series to make request for fee increase

The Marshall Artists Series will request a one dollar increase in student fees next year to cover increased operation costs, according to Nancy P. Hindsley, the series' coordinator.

Hindsley said the request is precipitated by "escalating costs of productions and union labor," and by plans for a celebration of the series' 50th anniversary in 1986.

"We need the increase for the program, for operations and everything else, and we plan to bring in really stellar attractions for the anniversary," Hindsley said.

Future teachers to face competency tests

By Pam Chandler
Staff Writer

All education majors will be required to take competency or pre-professional tests by 1985, according to Dr. Jack Maynard, chairperson of the state's Basic Skills Task Force.

The task force was created as a result of the adoption of Policy 5100, Plan for Professional Development of Educational Personnel, by the West Virginia Board of Education. They will make their recommendations to the Board in October.

"In the next several years anyone who goes into teaching will be required to take tests of basic skills and of their specialization," Maynard said.

The task force has outlined five major skills to be included in the testing. These skills include reading, listening, speaking, writing and mathematics. Maynard said they have reviewed many tests and have not found a single test adequate for all of the outlined requirements.

The task force will recommend several tests, a different one for each of the major skills. They have not yet found one for the listening skill. Maynard said they will recommend to the board that funding be allocated to develop a customized listening test. Maynard said the task force would like to see the testing begin next fall. He said, "The entire program must go into effect by September of 1985 to meet the requirements of Policy 5100."

The recommended tests, which include the NTE Pre-Professional Skills Test and the ACT Comp would cost the student about forty dollars.

Maynard said the task force, "Would want the exams to be applied early in the students program, perhaps by the sophomore year. Of course the testing of their specialization could not come until they were well into their major."

He said the College of Education would not gear teaching toward the tests but if Marshall's students continually scored low in a certain area, "We would work on that specific area and try to improve it."

Maynard said the task force has been working for over ten months and has many hopes, "To incorporate the testing without hurting the educational system."

Search

Seventeen members serve on the search committee in addition to Walsh, the executive secretary. Walsh manages the paperwork, receives and records applications and sends the applications to committee members for evaluation.

After the field of candidates is narrowed to 25, Walsh said the committee will meet again and after giving the list another "really good look", cut the list of 25 candidates down to eight.

Those eight candidates will be brought to Huntington for on-campus interviews. From the interviews, the committee will choose a minimum of three and a maximum of five candidates to recommend to the BOR.

The regents will then choose a president from among candidates the committee recommends.

Walsh estimated that the search process would take from six to eight months - from the time the incumbent leaves until the new one arrives.

Although there is no deadline for filling the position, Walsh said Jan. 1 is a good target date for the process to be completed.

However, he said there's a possibility that the committee could begin the process all over again if the opinion of the majority is no one appropriate for the job has applied.

The basic procedure that the search committee follows is in compliance with a provision in the West Virginia State Code.

Walsh said this is the sixth presidential search he has participated in under this specific law.

Each committee member has received a university mission statement and a statement of the responsibilities of the president, he said.

"These documents define for the committee members the basic qualifications of a president, the responsibilities of a president and the qualifications needed for this community and this section of the state."

The responsibilities include understanding the mission of the institution, exercising leadership and support for academic and student-life programs, developing a competent staff, communicating with the Board of Regents, the governor and other state and local officials and possessing a willingness to undertake assignments requested by the BOR.

The search committee decided at a meeting Aug. 10 to:

-To inform contenders of the salary before bringing them to campus for interviews. The salary range is $53,000 to $54,000.

-To bring candidates to campus in random order so no one knows who got the highest ratings from the committee.

-To inform all applicants and nominees when they are eliminated from consideration.

-To make public only the names of candidates brought to the campus for interviews.

-Not to set absolute requirements, such as degrees and teaching experience, to bar any contender; instead, to consider collectively all the criteria in the IBA's presidential profile guidelines in arriving at a rating. Committee members will assign each candidate a rating between zero and five with five being the highest.

-To add to their profile guidelines the qualification that the new president has demonstrated fund-raising abilities.

Tomorrow's part of the series will profile the members of the search committee and give the qualities they would like to see in a university president.

Freshman soccer player 'challenged'

By J. Shep Brown
Staff Writer

Steve Fischer is a freshman starter who played most of the first six games of the season; however, he's finding the transition challenging from last year when he was named the state's high school soccer player of the year.

The biggest difference is going away from his close friends whom he had played with for years to being on a team where friendships are new. "Besides friends, it's the running. I have to work a lot harder."

"I liked high school better (than college)," Fischer said. He said he was such a standout that he had to tell his what to do. "I really coached the team."

Fischer will be the starting sweeper in the VMI game Friday at 2 p.m. in Lexington, Va., since junior Scott Jackson will sit out due to an injury in Sunday's Wake Forest game, Fischer said.

"(The sweeper) makes up for the other fullback's mistakes," Fischer said. He doesn't mark anyone man-to-man or get all loose balls, he said. He can go anywhere on the field.

Fischer should make the position adjustment easily since he played sweeper at Barboursville, he said. "They're (VMI) supposed to be real fast. I won't do much running."

Senior Jim Karnes will start in Fischer's fullback spot, Fischer said. Marshall's game at VMI will be the team's second conference game. "Everyone wants to win the Southern Conference real bad, so everyone works hard."

"Those are the games everyone tries the hardest. Everyone against Appalachian State was so pumped up. "We want to do good in all the other games, but the conference means the most," Fischer said.

Fischer has played well on defense, Jack DeFazio, head coach, said. "I don't think I played that well this weekend, but I think I played well in the Appy State game, Fischer said."

Steve Fischer (No. 5) is described by head coach Jack DeFazio as "playing well on defense."

Big Green ups funds $29,500

By Thom Copher
Staff writer

The success of Big Green Week makes the foundation's expectations for 1983-84 a reality, according to Joseph B. Feaganes, director of the Big Green Foundation.

Feaganes said a total of 155 contributors gave pledges to the foundation during Big Green Week, which ran from Sept. 12 thru Sept. 23. A total of about $29,500 was raised, he said.

A large percentage of last year's contributors had pledged before Big Green Week, Feaganes said. "We have 45 new contributors, 51 'lost sheep' who contributed a few years back and 59 renewals from last year."

Feaganes said the foundation's goal of maintaining last year's membership total is nearing completion. "We have a total of 618 contributors this year, which is almost equal to the total number we had during all of last year," he

Baseball team bids farewell to St. Clouds Commons with double-header split

If all goes as planned, Marshall's baseball team's fall double-header split with Morehead State last Saturday at St. Clouds will be the final games the Herd has to play at that particular diamond.

The new baseball field just off Norway Avenue, near the Cabell County Vocational Center, should be ready when the season opens this spring, MU coach Jack Cook said.

A backstop and fencing are being installed, with sodding scheduled for later this week or early next week, Cook said.

"Everything is going real well," he said. "We're looking forward to playing on a different facility. It will be an A-1 field and we plan on keeping it that way."

The new field's dimensions are 320 feet down the lines, 360 in the alleys and 380 to center field.

Marshall begins its 1984 season March 12-18 when it travels south for games with Clemson, Auburn, Columbus College and Appalachian State.

Cook said baseball in the Southern Conference will be restructured this season with the conference schools being split into North and South Divisions.

Marshall, East Tennessee State, VMI and Appy State will comprise the North while Furman, Davidson, Western Carolina and The Citadel in the South.

Tennessee-Chattanooga dropped baseball two years ago.

Cook said the divisional winners will compete in a playoff to determine the conference's representative in the NCAA tournament.

In Saturday's doubleheader, Marshall won the first game 10-4 behind the hitting of Chip Cook (2 for 2), Todd Sager (2 for 3) and Terry Thompson (2 for 4). Sophomore Scott Shumate was the winning pitcher.

MSU defeated the Herd 9-4 in the second contest. Aaron Rice, Dan Culicerto and Cook each had two hits in the game. Junior David Clay was the losing pitcher.

Tough field, course ahead for MU golfers

By Bill Durstein
Staff Writer

The best field of competitors the golf team will face this fall awaits it at the Augusta College/Forest Hills Invitational, according to Coach Joe Feaganes.

The three-day, 54-hole tournament, which begins Friday, will include 18 teams from the South.

"We play a practice round Thursday to get used to the course," Feaganes said. "Then we will face the toughest field that we will see all fall."

The Herd has competed in this tournament the past two years finishing in 12th and 3rd places. "We were only a few shots from the top eight last year and we played super two years ago against a strong field," he said.

With a field including defending champion North Carolina, Duke and Furman, competition could be so tough that MU could play well and still finish 15th, Feaganes said.

"I would favor North Carolina and Georgia to win," he said. "Which team has the hot hand will tell the story."

The host team, Augusta College, usually does not fare well in competition of this stature, Feaganes said. "Last year they finished last, but they are small and do not recruit with the big schools," he said. "But, they really do a great job of hosting the tournament."

The event will be played at the Forest Hills Golf Club, which is one of the oldest in Augusta, Feaganes said.

"It is fairly tough. As a matter of fact, Bobby Jones won a tournament on the course many years ago," he said. "I'm not sure of the shape it is in, I have heard two conflicting reports on the course."

MU's lineup is different from its last tournament. The players will be seniors Gary Rusnak, Mike Tennant and Ty Neal, who competed at Ohio State last week.

Two new players join the others this weekend. They are senior Charles Dale and sophomore Mike Voltz.

Sportsline

Paladin honored

Furman's Troy Phillips, who led a defense Saturday that limited Marshall to 88 yards rushing and boosted the Paladins to a 31-7 victory, was named the Southern Conference defensive player of the week.

Phillips was the choice of sportswriters and sportscasters in the fourth week of voting by the Southern Conference Sports Media Association.

Marshall had only 54 net yards and three first downs in the first half, mostly due to Phillip's efforts. Phillips had five solo tackles, assisted on two others, caused one Marshall fumble and recovered another. Four of his tackles resulted in lost yardage for Marshall.

The 6-foot-1, 228-pound nose guard from West Columbia, S.C., and all-league selection in 1982 drew the praise of Furman coach Dick Sheridan after the Paladins' third straight victory.

Intramural registration

Registration for intramural field goal kicking will continue through Oct. 7, with play beginning Oct. 19. Anyone interested may sign-up in the intramural office located in Henderson Center, Room 2018.

Police ready for WVU

MORGANTOWN - Phalanxes of police will be ready Saturday to handle upwards of 6,000 West Virginia University football fans expected to descend on the Sunnyside section of town following the Mountaineers' "Backyard Brawl" with Pittsburgh's Panthers.

Sunnyside is home to a number of bars catering primarily to students and it's been the scene of several rowdy post-game demonstrations in recent years. With West Virginia in the unusual position of being favored over Pitt in Saturday's game, police are bracing for the possibility of a major exercise in crowd control.

"It's not going to be business as usual. When Pitt comes to town we really mean business," Morgantown Police Chief John Cease said.

said. "We project that number will significantly grow."

In addition to the success of Big Green Week, the foundation's goal of raising $400,000 this year is not unrealistic due to the upcoming basketball season and various fund-raising events, Feaganes said. A total of $244,536 has been raised so far this year, he said.

"We were real pleased with all the effort our volunteer workers gave us," Feaganes said. "Overall, Big Green Week was a success."
